4      Implementations described and claimed herein enforce versions of program

5      code on a client based on an operating policy during execution of the software.

6      The version of program code on the client is checked for compliance with the 7      operating policy when the client attempts to execute the program code or access a

8      resource. If the program code on the client does not comply with the operating 9      policy, the client is unable to execute the noncompliant program code or access the 10     resource.
